Defective wiring, accumulations of rubbish, and "poor housekeeping" on the part of a number of business places, led all other causes of fire hazards listed by the 30 special agents who today were inspecting the business section of Gettysburg.

The inspection was being made, through the sponsorship of the Gettysburg Chamber of Commerce, by representatives of the State Fire Prevention Association of Pennsylvania, with John W. Turner, vice president of the Harrisburg division, in charge. Members of the Gettysburg fire company assisted, and Boy Scouts acted as guides for the inspectors today.

Varied Conditions

With still many places to be visited this afternoon, the inspectors said conditions found this morning in Gettysburg ranged from "very good" to "poor," and in some cases "very bad."

In addition to finding much defective wiring and considerable "poor housekeeping" in allowing the accumulation of rubbish, the inspectors found a great many places either entirely without fire extinguishers or with extinguishers which had not been re-charged within the past year, the time limit set for their effectiveness.

The inspectors praised the co-operation of Fire Marshal Eugene S. Sickles and William G. Weaver, vice president of the fire company. Assisting in the inspection today was John Holden, president of the state fire prevention association, and L. L. Pryor from the state fire marshal's office.

Show Movies In Schools

Movies and talks were being presented today at the grade schools and high schools and at the college and seminary on fire prevention, by Stuart H. Smith, William H. Hope and Edmund J. Renkey of the prevention association. They will address a meeting of Lions and Rotarians tonight.

The special agents said they had received fine cooperation from property owners and tenants in their inspections today. Firemen said that on their preliminary visits to obtain permission for the inspections, only two business places refused to allow the inspections to be made.

BLUE RIDGE BUS STRIKE IS OVER

Washington, Pa., Oct. 24 (P)—The long Blue Ridge bus lines strike is over. The company said some buses will start running tomorrow and all will be back in operation by Wednesday.

About 300 drivers and mechanics of the firm's western division struck September 1 in a contract dispute. For 54 days an estimated 20,000 daily passengers in western Pennsylvania, West Virginia and nearby parts of Ohio had to seek other means of transportation.

The company's eastern division which serves the route between Pittsburgh and Cumberland, Md., and points east was not affected.

Settlement of the dispute came at a membership meeting of local 1063, AFL Street Railway and Motor Coach employees. Members voted to accept the bus company's latest offer which gives them a six-cent hourly wage boost and eliminates other disputed issues. The employees struck demanding a 25-cent pay hike and the change of certain work practices.

Service will resume tomorrow on routes linking New Kensington, Bridgeville, Indiana and Charleroi, Pa., and Steubenville, Ohio. Service will be resumed Wednesday for other points served by Blue Ridge including Waynesburg, Uniontown and Washington, Pa., Morgantown, Clarksburg and Wheeling, W. Va., and Cleveland, O.

Chairman Guise Calls For Final Chest Reports Today

Reporting only $8,980—less than half of the $19,900 goal—on hand at Community Chest headquarters today, Chairman Glenn Guise appealed to all solicitors to complete their work and make final reports today.

The 10-day campaign by Gettysburg's two-year-old Chest organization opened October 14.

Saturday's reports boosted the fund total by about $2,000 but left the campaign nearly $11,000 short of its goal. Today is the final report day for the battalion of nearly 200 solicitors, who have been conducting the door-to-door canvass of the entire community.

"We know that large amounts of donations are in the hands of our solicitors," Chairman Guise said today as he urged final reports from workers in all divisions of the campaign. "Many of the workers have made partial reports as the campaign advanced but scores of others are holding all of their collections until they make their report at the end of their solicitations."

SAYS UN DOING WORK OF GREAT WORLD WORTH

The four-year-old United Nations is "barely out of the crawling stage as yet," but "already it has carried out a great amount of work important to the world," Mrs. Ursula Hubbard Duffus, specialist on international organizations for the U.S. Department of State said this morning.

She was the featured speaker at a United Nations Day program held by the International club of Gettysburg college at Brua chapel.

Listing the various programs carried out by the United Nations and organizations associated with it, she noted that "the success of the United Nations to a large extent will depend upon how well the United States carries out its commitments and responsibilities. Because we are so large and powerful, we have what would seem a disproportionate share in the responsibility for the United Nations. If the United Nations is backed by the United States, it will succeed; if we fail our obligations then the other nations will follow our example."

Warns Of Responsibilities

For that reason, she said, "The people of the United States have a dual obligation. They must get through to the representatives of the United States in the United Nations to see that they carry out the (Please Turn to Page 2)

"The 1949 Pennsylvania Week committee here in Adams county has been very happy to cooperate with Governor Duff and the Department of Commerce in putting on parade the products of Adams county of which we may all be so justly proud and for which, particularly at this season of the year, we should be equally thankful. As Adams county chairman it gives me great pleasure to extend to all of those who took any part in this activity, sincere thanks and appreciation for the fine work they have done and for the cooperation which they have extended me."

200 DEMOCRATS ATTEND RALLY AND OX ROAST

Approximately two hundred Adams county Democrats, meeting Saturday afternoon at the Lincoln Logs hotel for a party rally and ox roast were told by speakers to "be serious about giving the best possible local government, and if we give good local government the people of the state will know that we can give good state government."

Both Judge Harry M. Montgomery, Allegheny county, candidate for judge of the Superior court and Miss Genevieve Blatt, secretary of the Democratic state committee, were emphatic in declaring that "good government is the best politics that any party can play."

Judge Montgomery said that the Democratic registration in Allegheny county grew from 29,000 eighteen years ago to 424,000 today while Republican registrations dropped from 321,000 to 306,000 "because the Democratic candidates who won office have given the people the kind of government they want. The county parties should insist that able men run for office and that the local officers give good government."

Predicts Democratic Strength

Miss Blatt, claiming that "we are on the threshold of something very big—an avalanche of Democratic strength next year to return Senator Myers and Congressman Lind to office and to put a Democratic administration in at Harrisburg," pointed out that "if we Democrats give good local government then the people will say, let us give them the state administration, for they have proven their ability."

Noting that "This is Pennsylvania Week, with the theme, 'Keep it growing,'" Miss Blatt added that "Pennsylvania is not only growing in good things, it is also growing in some bad things that sorely need correction. Conditions in our state institutions, the asylums, and penal institutions are still bad in many instances. The Public Utilities Commission (Please Turn to Page 8)

U.S. Supreme Court Refuses To Review Ray Simmons Case

Washington, Oct. 24 (P)—The United States Supreme Court today refused to review the trial of Ray H. Simmons, of near Mechanicsburg, Pa., sentenced to death for the hammer-slaying of Herbert Humpert, Tyrone township, Adams county farmer.

Humpert was killed on March 24, 1947. Simmons in appealing to the high tribunal contended he was denied various rights guaranteed by the constitution. He also insisted that the Pennsylvania Supreme Court erroneously refused to give him a chance to present asserted new evidence before a trial jury.

"Had Fair Trial"

When District Attorney Daniel E. Teeter, who assisted former District Attorney J. Francis Yake in the prosecution of Simmons, was informed of the decision of the nation's highest tribunal, he said:

"Simmons' claim that he had been denied constitutional rights had been declared untrue by me in my answer to the defendant's counsel's petition to the Supreme Court for a review of his case.

"I maintained that he had not been denied any constitutional right, that he had been given a fair trial and was accorded every consideration.

"I also alleged to the Supreme Court that the activities of the State Police and former District Attorney Yake were undoubtedly fair. I also declared that the trial judge (Judge W. C. Shely) was very fair in all of his rulings and very fair to the defendant in every respect.

"The jury was carefully chosen. It gave serious deliberation to all contentions and rendered its verdict accordingly.

"Simmons has made numerous appeals in Pennsylvania and has been refused in every instance."

THOUSANDS SEE PA. WEEK SHOW AT LITTLESTOWN

Several thousand people, in addition to the 1,500 school children of the vicinity, viewed the industrial exhibit in St. Aloysius hall, Littlestown, on Thursday, Friday and Saturday, which was sponsored by the Chamber of Commerce in observance of Pennsylvania Week.

On Saturday, instead of closing the building after the 2 to 4 p. m. showing, the hall remained open continuously until almost midnight, to accommodate all those who wished to view the exhibits. Over 25 local manufacturers displayed a wide variety of products from baby shoes to complete kitchen furniture; from feed and flour to cakes and pastries; from canned goods to a diversified selection of iron and aluminum products; from clothing to concrete blocks. Ceramics, paper boxes, canners' products, raincoats and many other articles were on display, including a picture of each of the business places in town by "Bob" Crouse of the Photo shop and a complete set of hunting equipment and mountings of what can be hunted in the state by the Littlestown Fish and Game Association, Inc.

On Saturday night, the hall was filled to capacity for the program presented by the Littlestown Men's chorus under the direction of L. Robert Snyder, when the following numbers were sung: "Winter Song"; "If I Loved You," featuring the first appearance of Vocalist Patsy Crouse, a recent addition to the group; "The Erie Canal," a Waring arrangement, with Stewart N. Long as soloist; "My Heart Stood Still," with Mrs. Crouse and Mr. Long singing a duet for the first time in public, which was arranged by Mrs. J. Robert Sell, pianist for the chorus; "Soldier's Chorus," "Proudly as the Eagle" and "There's a Tavern in the Town."

TRUMAN URGES OUTLAWING OF ATOMIC BOMB IN UN ADDRESS

New York, Oct. 24 (AP)—President Truman challenged all nations today to agree on a workable way to outlaw the atomic bomb, as the alternative to man's destruction.

Speaking against the background of Russia's refusal to come into an agreement that the United States and other powers have endorsed, Mr. Truman said:

"To assure that atomic energy will be devoted to man's welfare and not to his destruction is a continuing challenge to all nations and all peoples."

It was his first foreign policy declaration since his September 23 announcement: "We have evidence that within recent weeks an atomic explosion occurred in the U.S.S.R."

The President declared:

Peaceful Use of Bomb

Ever since the first atomic weapon was developed, a major objective of United States policy has been a system of international control of atomic energy that would assure effective prohibition of atomic weapons, and at the same time would promote the peaceful use of atomic energy by all nations.

Mr. Truman spoke at the laying of the cornerstone of the secretariat building of permanent United Nations headquarters on UN's fourth anniversary.

The United States has offered to surrender its bombs under the Russian-opposed, but General Assembly-approved "Baruch Plan" providing rigid UN inspections and controls to assure against illegal bomb building.

The President did not mention Russia by name, but indirectly challenged the Soviet government to offer a "better and more effective plan."

"Threat To Peace"

He said the United States is now "and will remain, ready to do its full share" to meet the atomic weapon's threat to peace.

In another obvious dig at the Soviet orbit Mr. Truman also sharply criticized disregard of human rights which he said were "indispensable to political, economic and social progress." He said UN members know that "disregard of human rights is the beginning of tyranny, and, to often, the beginning of war."

He spoke just two days after his General Assembly voted agreement with western charges that Russian satellites Bulgaria, Romania and Hungary are suppressing human rights and freedoms. The question first was raised after trials of Jose Cardinal Mindszenty in Budapest and other religious leaders in Bulgaria.

Respect Human Rights

"Respect for human rights, promotion of economic development and a system for control of weapons are requisites to the kind of world we seek," Mr. Truman said. "We can not solve these problems overnight, but we must keep everlastingly working at them in order to reach our goal."

"No single nation can always have its own way, for these are human problems, and the solution of human problems is to be found in negotiation and mutual adjustment."

The General Assembly approved, 40 to 6, November 4, 1948, the United States-endorsed plan drafted by Bernard M. Baruch and others of the UN Atomic Energy committee.

"This is a good plan," the president declared. "It is a plan that can be effective in accomplishing its purpose. It is the only plan so far developed that would meet the technical requirements of control, that would make prohibition of atomic weapons effective, and at the same time promote the peaceful development of atomic energy on a co-operative basis."

"We support this plan and will continue to support it unless and until a better and more effective plan is put forward."

This was a new notice that the United States will continue building up its stockpile of atomic bombs until controls are guaranteed. The Russians have insisted on outlawing the bomb as a preliminary to discussion of controls.

TRUCK OF STEEL AND BUS CRASH; SAILOR KILLED

Paoli, Pa., Oct. 24 (AP)—A Philadelphia bound Greyhound bus and a tractor-trailer loaded with 33,000 pounds of steel collided a mile and a half west of here today killing one person and injuring 31 others.

The dead man was identified by state police as Stephen H. Chapley, Jr., 18-year-old sailor, who was returning to the Cruiser Roanoke at the Philadelphia Naval base. He had been visiting his home in Uniontown, Pa.

The trailer, laden with sheet steel, cut through the right front side of the bus, pinning several passengers in their seats.

Exit Door Crumpled

Front windows of the bus were shattered by the impact and the exit-entrance door at the right front corner was crumpled against the trailer. Passengers able to walk left the bus through the emergency door at the rear.

Dale Hathaway, of Medina, O., driver of the trailer truck, said the impact all but threw him from his cab.

He said he was proceeding up grade at about 20 miles per hour when "I felt an awful jolt in the back."

"Then the trailer was knocked onto the road shoulder."

Hathaway then picked up a fire extinguisher, put out a smoldering fire in the electric wiring system of the bus and began aiding the injured. He was assisted in this work by the two relief drivers of the trailer truck, his brother, Delton, 23, and Maynard Carlton, 32, both of Medina.

Other passing motorists stopped to help. A chain was attached to the bus and another truck pulled the two wrecked vehicles apart to aid in lifting out the injured bus passengers.

Chester County Coroner Cooper T. Bishop quoted one bus passenger, David Cortledge, 49, of Pittsburgh, saying he saw the bus driver flick a cigarette out the window then swerve to the left and to the right just before the crash.

Cortledge, who was in the third seat behind the driver, told Bishop: "I yelled 'look out, we're going to hit that truck.' Then we crashed."

wishes of the people of the United States. And the general public must also interest itself in congressional legislation to see that the congress by its actions carries out the programs necessary to implement the United Nations. As an example, through the United Nations, the United States is interested in developing the economic resources of all nations. Prosperous people are contented people, not inclined to get into wars; and so our nation is at peace. Prosperous peoples can buy exports from us, and thus our prosperity is aided. Yet the action of the U.S. in the United Nations could be nullified if, for example, high tariffs were placed by congress, and free trade halted."

The Food and Agriculture Organization, part of the United Nations setup, on which Mrs. Duffus is, United States delegate, has made a promising start on its job of providing more food for more people, she said. "The work, of course, is long term, for the most part, consisting of aiding nations in developing their land, their breeds of cattle, and their grains so that more food can be produced in each country. Today we are faced with the problem that one-half of the world's population does not get enough to eat."

While the FAO might seem to be most important to other nations, it has also proven of value to the United States. "Through the FAO, working with our department of agriculture, a number of new grains adapted to certain climatic or soil conditions have been brought into the U. S. for crossing with local grains to meet particular conditions."

Bullets Down Muhlenberg 9-6 After Furiously Waged Game In Allentown Saturday Night

In one of the hardest fought football games in recent years, Gettysburg college downed Muhlenberg, 9-6, before 5,000 fans at Allentown high school's spacious stadium, Saturday night. It was the Bullets' first win over the Mules since 1939.

Gettysburg's touchdown play came in 3:20 of the final quarter when Ross Sachs, rushed by the Muhlenberg forward wall, flipped a pass straight down the middle deep in the end zone. Both Larry Johnson and Don Emert went up after the ball, and both came down with it. The touchdown was credited to Johnson. The play carried from Muhlenberg's 22. Ronald Fitzkee's reliable toe added the extra point from placement with Bob Bitner holding.

Big Martin Pavelic, who co-captained with Sachs, led the forward wall in its midnight display of the season. Pavelic, a 60-minute player, never looked better as he made more than his share of tackles, and nailed Muhlenberg's end Vernon Miller in the end zone for a safety. Dwight Speaker and Jack Gilligan were other 60-minute performers for Gettysburg. In the first half Speaker saved several touchdowns with his deadly tackling.

Muhlenberg scored its TD in 9:55 of the fourth quarter. Gettysburg's Tom Faulkner kicked off following the Bullet score to Jack Crider on his own 13, and Crider ran it back to his own 48. Harry Kreutzberg, a pulverizing fullback, carried the ball on four consecutive plays for 14 yards. After a pass was incomplete, Donald Latzko dashed for 23 yards to the Bullet 15. Here the Bullets held and took over on their own 10. Gettysburg failed to gain on two plays, and on the next play Ross Sachs faded back in the end zone and tossed down the middle but his pass was intercepted by Latzko on the 12. Three plays later, the same Latzko crashed over from the seven. Sisto Averno's kick was wide.

The Bullets scored their final two points with two minutes of play remaining. After Jack Jones punted out of bounds on the home team's 3, Al Rubbert passed to Miller in the end zone, but the latter was hit by Pavelic before he could get started.

Both teams had numerous scoring opportunities but staid play sent them a-glimmering. The Bullets advanced to the Muhlenberg 15 in the early stages of the game after Elwood Hauver recovered Jack Crider's fumble of the opening kickoff. The Mules braced, pushed Gettysburg back to the 25, and took over.

On the fifth play of the second quarter, Muhlenberg's Crider fumbled on the one-yard stripe and the pigskin was recovered in the end zone by Junie Griffiths for a touchdown. In seven plays the Bullets moved to the Mules' 24 where a fumble, with Dietz recovering for the home team, ended the drive.

Late in the second period the Bullets were threatening again. With Sachs completing passes to Emert for 37, to Coder for 12, and to Speaker for 18, Gettysburg moved to a first down on the Mules' 8. Muhlenberg held and took over on their own 26.

Again late in the third quarter, Gettysburg marched down near pay-off land again. Beaver intercepted a pass on the Muhlenberg 40 and ran it back to the 25. After running plays by Cervino, Speaker and Jones carried to the 10, Coder made a sensational catch of a Sachs pass on the 11 on three plays. Gettysburg tried a field goal with Fitzkee booting and Bitner holding. It was partially blocked and Latzko picked up the free ball on the 2 and returned it to his own 48.

Gettysburg played its finest football game since the resumption of football in 1946. After being pushed around in the early stages of the game, the Bullet line and ends put on display hard-charging tactics that threw opposing carriers for frequent losses.

CAREER THIEF IS ON PAROLE

Pittsburgh, Oct. 24 (AP)—Millard Wright, former career burglar, is going to find out whether the brain operation he underwent nearly three years ago has made an honest man of him.

He has been paroled from prison. Wright underwent the operation at his own suggestion in the hope it would cure him of criminal tendencies.

Known as a pre-frontal lobotomy, the surgery consisted of severing some of fibers which lead from the frontal lobe to the so-called "emotion center," deeper in the brain. But after he recovered, the late Judge G. Malcolm refused to grant him immediate freedom. The judge said Wright still owed a debt to society. He sentenced him to two to 12 years in prison for a series of burglaries that climaxed a criminal career begun at the age of 14.

Officials at Western Penitentiary said Wright, now 40, has been a model prisoner. He was released October 15.

He's under parole custody of a physician and the penitentiary chaplain. He works as a cook in the hospital.

DELONE LACES MT. CARMEL BY 28-12 COUNT

Delone Catholic high school's unbeaten football aggregation notched its seventh straight victory of the season and 16th in a row by upsetting Mt. Carmel Catholic 28-12 Sunday afternoon at McSherrystown before approximately 3,500 spectators.

Coach Alex Bell's outfit struck quickly in the first period. Mt. Carmel was forced to punt soon after receiving the kickoff and the punt was blocked by Brenner with the Squires taking over on the Mt. Carmel's own 47 yard line. On the next play Ed Timmins broke through right tackle and raced for a score. Dick Smith made the first of his four extra points on a placement.

The officials carried the ball about as often as the players in the first period and many penalties were inflicted. Near the end of the quarter a fumble was recovered by Phil Smith on the Mt. Carmel 31. Staub passed to Murren for a first down on the 5 and shortly before the period end Murren smacked over from the 1.

Delone missed a fine scoring chance in the second period after making a first down on the 2. Mt. Carmel punting out of danger. Midway in the third quarter the Squires added their fourth score. Murren going over from the 3.

Early in the last period Mt. Carmel again halted a Delone drive on the 2 and from there moved for a touchdown on a pair of long passes to Pesarchick and Darrup. Wydra's placement try was partially blocked.

Delone tabbed its final score when Staub intercepted a pass and reached the visitors' 7 from where Timmins cracked through.

Again Mt. Carmel took to the air and a 40-yard pass, Pesarchick to Chicheksi, produced the score. McGee's boot for the point was wide.

Next Sunday the Squires will be host to unbeaten St. Francis Prep.

LUKE SEWELL TO MANAGE REDS

Cincinnati, Oct. 24 (AP)—Luke Sewell, who led the St. Louis Browns out of baseball's wilderness, today had shouldered the task of trying to do the same thing for the Cincinnati Reds.

Sewell, a veteran major league catcher, yesterday was named manager of the Reds for 1950 and 1951, succeeding Bucky Walters, who was relieved of his duties in the last week of the 1949 season. Sewell was a coach under Walters during the past season.

Sewell directed the Browns to their one and only American league pennant in 1944.

And in taking over the job of hoisting Cincinnati out of the lower reaches of the National League, Sewell did it with the positive word from Powell Crosley, Jr., chairman of the board and principal owner, that it must be done by developing young players and not through wholesale purchases of established stars.

"The club must stand on its own feet," said Crosley as the announcement of Sewell's appointment was made. "I don't care how much an individual has. I am frank to say I can't subsidize the club to the extent of a million dollars a year."

RELIEF BILL SOARS

Harrisburg, Oct. 24 (AP)—The coal and steel strikes are sending Pennsylvania's relief rolls soaring. The Department of Public Assistance reported over the week-end that 15,097 persons were added to the relief rolls in the first half of October while only 7,150 stopped receiving the payments. "This half-month increase was slightly more than the increase during the entire month of September," the department said in its report.

Philadelphia, Oct. 24 (AP)—Representatives of displaced persons commissions from 13 states will meet here tomorrow to work out plans for speeding the settlement of immigrants in farm jobs. Listed among the speakers at the conference are U.S. Senator Francis J. Myers (D., Pa.) and Edward M. O'Connor, chairman of the federal displaced persons commission.

Biglerville Scores Easy 46-19 Win Over Manheim

Coach Gene Haas's Biglerville Cannons gained their fourth straight win as they rolled over Manheim Boro 46-19 on Saturday night at Biglerville.

The Cannons scored in every quarter with long runs featuring almost every touchdown. Three minutes after the starting whistle Biglerville had moved over the goal line twice. Throughout the second half of the JV team was on the field. Manheim Boro scored once in the first frame and twice in the last quarter. In first downs Biglerville had the edge 11-10.

Manheim Boro fumbled the opening kick at the goal line but managed to get to the 7, where they were forced to kick on fourth down. Heller returned the kick to the Manheim Boro 25. Walde, on second down, gained a first down on the 6 from where Heller scored. His extra point kick was good. Manheim Boro returned the kick to their 42. In three downs they were thrown back to the 30. Heller returned their fourth down kick from his own 40 to the Manheim Boro 13. Rice, on three tries, went over for the score. The extra point try was no good.

Manheim Boro
Manheim Boro returned the kick to the Biglerville 48 and moved for a score. They got no where on three tries. Then clipping and off-side penalties gave Manheim Boro a first on about the 32. Sheaffer pushed for a first down to the 20. On second down Manheim Boro scored on a perfectly executed play as Shank took a flat pass and lateraled to Sheaffer who charged over for the TD. The extra point attempt was no good.

As the second quarter started Biglerville's Pitzer picked up a first down on the Manheim Boro 44 and from there Walde took off and went all the way for a tally. The extra point attempt was no good. Manheim Boro brought the following kick out to its own 46. Sheaffer smashed for a first to the Biglerville 43 and then to the 30. On third down Plattenberg intercepted a pass and raced all the way to his opponent's 5. Pitzer and Rice, on four tries, got to the one foot line where Manheim Boro took over.

Cannons Get Safety
Unger broke through to tackle the Manheim Boro ball carrier behind his own goal line for a safety. Later Heller received a kick and carried to the Manheim Boro 44. After losing on a 15 yard clipping penalty, Pitzer moved to the 36. From here Heller circled the end for a six-point try. The extra point attempt was no good.

As the second half got under way Heller brought the kick-off to his own 37 and from there the Cannons moved for four consecutive first downs and a TD. On third down a pass, Heller to Walde, clicked to their own 49. Heller gained another first down to the 35; Rice carried to the 25 on fourth down, and then Heller pushed to the 13 from where he scored. His extra point was good. Manheim Boro returned the kick to its 34. On second down Unger recovered a Manheim Boro fumble on his opponents' 49. L. Lawver moved for a first down to the 34 and then to the 23. Staub, on three tries, slashed to the 8. Here a pass, Howe to Igaur, was good for a TD. The extra point attempt was no good. Manheim Boro returned the kick to its own 37 as the quarter ended.

As pay resumed, Kreider and Shirk plunged for first downs. On fourth down L. Lawver intercepted a pass on his own 15 and raced 85 yards for a tally. The extra point attempt was no good.

Manheim Boro carried the kick back to the 16. Jack Howe intercepted a pass on the 46. The Cannons were forced to kick on fourth down and Manheim Boro took possession on the Biglerville 42. A pass, Shank to Rhoads, was good to the 5. From here Shirk slammed over for a score. The extra point was no good. Biglerville carried the kick to its own 39 where it fumbled on third down with Manheim Boro taking over on the 48. Sheaffer netted a first to the 30 and then to the 10 from where he scored on third down. Huber bucked over for the extra point. In the final minute of play Biglerville's Jim Heller intercepted a pass.

Next Saturday afternoon Biglerville will tangle with Palmyra on the latter's field.

Patton Sets New Extra Point Mark

Philadelphia, Oct. 24 (AP)—A soft-spoken Texan has qualified as the new "toe" of the National Football league.

He's 240-pound Cliff Patton of the Philadelphia Eagles who yesterday broke "Automatic" Jack Manders' 11-year-old record of 73 consecutive points after touchdowns.

Patton drove seven conversions between the uprights to run his string to 77 as the Eagles downed Washington's Redskins 49-14.

Patton needed only three to become part of the NFL record book prior to yesterday's game against the Redskins. With little less than two minutes gone in the second quarter Tommy Thompson bucked for an Eagle touchdown and Patton calmly converted as a crowd of 28,855 roared its approval.

HALF DOZEN STATE ELEVEN ARE TOPPLED

(By The Associated Press)
At least half of Pennsylvania's six unbeaten college football teams face a rocky road this week-end, but it couldn't be any more disastrous than the one just past.

For another half dozen keystone state eleven's topped from the pinnacle in the biggest wave of upsets on Pennsylvania gridirons in many a year.

Here is what the undefeated teams will be facing this week-end: Penn takes on Pitt (4-1), West Chester meets Millersville (1-4), Gannon plays Slippery Rock (2-1-1), St. Vincent opposes St. Francis (4-1-1), Wilkes takes on Lycoming (1-2) and Kutztown faces Bloomsburg (5-1).

Of the six only Wilkes and West Chester appear to have soft touches. The boom might well be lowered on the other four.

Penn-Pitt Game Tops
The big game, of course, is the collision between Penn and Pitt at Philadelphia's Franklin field. A crowd of some 60,000 is expected to watch the surprisingly strong Penn team defend its laurels.

Last Saturday, hitherto unimpressive Penn blossomed as a major power with a thumping 28-7 victory over Navy. Bob Deuber, Ray Dooney, Bill Rhoads and Reds Bagneil all glittered in the backfield.

What happened to Pitt would best be forgotten by followers of the Panthers. An Indiana university eleven which had not won in 11 straight games blasted Pitt all over the lot, winning 48 to 14. Mike Milligan's eleven will move into Philadelphia on the rebound, and George Munger already is worrying.

Bloomsburg, which lost not a game last year in winning the teacher college championship, figures as the favorite to beat Kutztown and end the Berks county team's undefeated record. Kutztown has been tied once. So has Wilkes, but Lycoming doesn't appear to have the strength to halt the Wilkes undefeated string.

First Losses For Some
Slippery Rock, an in-and-out-but strong when on, rates as the choice to end the Gannon string. Gannon was idle last week while Slippery Rock was playing a 6-6 tie with Indiana. Bloomsburg edged past Shippensburg 14-13 while Kutztown was slaughtering Trenton (N.J.) teachers, 58-0. Wilkes was tied and Lycoming defeated Brockport N.Y. teachers 6-0.

St. Vincent remained unbeaten, untied and unscored upon with a 16-0 triumph over Waynesburg. St. Francis also showed strength in halting Millersville 19-0. West Chester knocked East Stroudsburg from the unbeaten 7-0 while its Friday night opponent, Millersville, was losing to St. Francis.

In addition to Pitt and East Stroudsburg, the teams of Juniata, Carnegie Tech, Clarion and Allegheny fell from the undefeated.

Juniata lost to Dickinson, 9-7, after its star halfback, Mike Dzyonar was kicked out of the game in the first half as the result of a slugging fracas.

Penn State Meets Syracuse
Clarion dropped a narrow 29-14 decision to strong California teachers. Allegheny and Carnegie Tech were defeated decisively, Allegheny losing 32-0 to Grove City and Carnegie Tech 38-0 to Case.

In other major games last week-end, Penn State lost 24-0 to Michigan State, Villanova slipped past Duquesne, 20-0, Bucknell bounced back from a one-point loss to Temple to trample Washington and Jefferson 62-0, Lehigh lost 43-0 to Brown and Lafayette lost a 7-0 decision to Delaware.

Temple (4-1) runs up against Michigan State Saturday, Villanova plays at Boston college, Bucknell travels to Buffalo and Penn State entertains Syracuse.

COLLEGE BOOTERS WIN
The Gettysburg college soccer team won its second victory of the season by blanking Lehigh 1-0 at Bethlehem on Saturday. The Bullets will meet Bucknell here Friday.

TERRORS CRUSH MOUNT 32-0 IN ROUGH TILT

Western Maryland's football team, beaten only by Gettysburg, won its fourth game in five starts by outclassing Mt. St. Mary's 32-0 in a rough and tumble fracas Saturday afternoon at Westminster.

Eighteen penalties were inflicted in the contest, costing the Mountaineers 108 yards and Western Maryland 90. Two players, Joe Corleto, of the Terrors, and Bud Veltri, of Mt. St. Mary's, were banished from the game.

On the last play of the first period Corrado passed to Lathroum for a score and the same combination worked a 14-yard aerial for another tally in the second period.

After a scoreless third quarter the Terrors tallied three times in the final period. Sparked by Fieldman, who bore the brunt of a down-field march, the Terrors scored when Fieldman plunked over. A little later Giannelli got away on a 44-yard touchdown run. Dyke flipped a 16-yard pass to Giannelli for the final score.

The defeat marked the fourth in a row for Mt. St. Mary's after winning their opener against Kings college.

Western Maryland rolled up 17 first downs in piling up 244 yards on rushing while the Mounts netted but three first downs and 32 yards on rushing.

Today's Talk

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

THE WILL TO WIN

One of the most extraordinary characters in the literary field of America today is Jesse Stuart. Several years ago I came across his book of poetry "Man With a Bull-tongue Plow" and was fascinated by it. Later I got his book "Beyond Dark Hills," a story of his beloved Kentucky hills and his tragic experiences in gaining an education. Then "Taps for Private Tussie" appeared in 1943, with widespread fame just around the corner—and justly so.

The latest book by this writer, "The Thread That Runs So True," I have just read, and I think it is his most inspiring. It is about his teaching experiences, his love for teaching, and all that goes with it. The personal story is so honestly and joyously told that you can hardly set the book aside until finished. And it is dedicated to the teachers of America. It should be read by every teacher in the land, and be in every school library.

If there were more teachers like Jesse Stuart who put their very souls into teaching, as he did, and who inspired every pupil to get "play" out of it, false ideals of living, and easy success, would be spurned, as he spurned them and taught the better way. Not only did this Kentucky hill boy have the will to win, but he put it into the consciousness of every pupil under his care. He cleaned his schools as well as the minds of his pupils.

In no other country is incentive so nurtured as in America. Here was a boy, brought up in the hill country of Kentucky, used to the hardest of manual labor upon the farm, in the steel, or at whatever his hand could grasp, who determined to win the highest honors as man and writer—and he has won superbly! His latest book is a classic and his government should present him with a Congressional Medal of Honor and the thanks of the country, for so instilling his ideals of education in the minds of his former students—teachers everywhere—and his ever accumulating readers.

Jesse Stuart puts himself into every book he writes. He has been called "The American Robert Burns," but he is just Jesse Stuart—unique. He has a poetic mind, and whether he writes in prose or poetry it is the same. Beauty is there, honesty and sincerity. I prize every book he has written.

Tomorrow Mr. Adams will talk on the subject: "Together"

INSTRUCTIONS FOR A NEW DRIVER

I know how very proud you are
To think you've learned to drive a car.

But wonder if you are aware
That death stalks every thoroughfare.

Though you have learned to stop and go,

Remember, there is more to know.
Always expect on flying feet

A child to dart into the street.

While you are driving, keep in mind
There are pedestrians, deaf and blind.

'Twere better far to slow your speed
Than sound a horn they cannot heed.

Of lights and highway signs beware,
There's nothing lost by taking care.
Disaster follows, driving fools
Who rashly disregard the rules.

Turn corners slowly, lest there be
Some hazard there you cannot see.
Be courteous, patient, night and day,
And never trust the right of way.

The ceremony was performed in the furnace recently invented for burning purposes by Herr Siemens, and the relatives of the deceased lady permitting strangers to be present, a large number of scientific men attended the experiment. Seventy-five minutes after the introduction of the coffin into the furnace all that remained of Lady Dilke and the coffin were six pounds of dust, placed in an urn. OUTLOOK DARK ON SETTLEMENT OF BIG STRIKES

Washington, Oct. 24 (AP)—The outlook for any voluntary settlements in the big coal and steel strikes continued exceedingly dark today.

A steadily increasing toll from the walkouts on the nation's economy made White House intervention seem more and more probable. There still was no word, however, that President Truman had made up his mind to act.

Officials closely watching the situation said administration policy for the moment is one of hope—hope that as the twin strikes become more acute, the pressure of public opinion and coal and steel customers may cause one side or the other to make a peace bid.

For a time yesterday, it appeared that White House hopes for early settlement were strong. A friend of the President quoted Mr. Truman as predicting an end to both strikes within ten days—but later said he had meant to get across that this was his own prediction instead of the President's.

The speaker was Arthur Clarendon Smith, Sr., president of the District of Columbia Democratic club, who was a White House visitor Friday. Smith spoke at a Sunday breakfast meeting of the club.

Ching At Work
Hope for some sort of a break in the deadlock seemed to be the basis on which Cyrus S. Ching, top government labor dispute mediator, was continuing in his secret talks with U. S. Steel corporation officials in New York. Ching also was in touch with officials of the striking CIO Steelworkers' union by telephone.

Philip Murray, president of the CIO and the Steelworkers' union, had an opportunity to review the whole situation with other CIO leaders at Cleveland. A series of meetings of the CIO's high command began there today. They are preliminaries to the annual CIO convention next week.

Ching was due to meet again with U. S. Steel this afternoon (2:30 p. m. EST). It was reported here that he has so far failed to shake either the industry or the union on their attitudes over the method of paying worker pensions.

Poultry Pointers

By FREDERICK BLOCK
What should be done to prevent the eradication of small farm flocks?

Will the increasing size of egg and broiler producers eradicate small farm flocks? Living in an age of specialization there are many people who believe that in a few years from now we will find nothing but huge farms with thousands of layers and hundreds of thousands of broilers. Cockerels to raise with the next season's pullets for many farmers are not as good a byproduct as they used to be. The broiler producers raise them more efficiently.

As enterprises grow larger, overhead expenses grow with them in spite of the fact that labor saving devices are being used. When a poor year comes, it will be much easier to carry on with a small flock, than with a large one, because the small flock is only one out of various enterprises for a farmer, but a poor year can be hazardous for an enterprise with no other income but poultry.

In the days without electricity, without running water, or other farm fuel than wood, the farmer needed a lot of time to care for a hundred chickens. It was a man's job to carry the water and heavy feed to his birds. Now with modern equipment, the farmer's wife can do the same job much quicker for 300 birds. At the same time the husband can take care of other chores. The operator of small flocks who does not believe in the poultry industry's advances, and who does not take advantage of them, will find out sooner or later that the upkeep of his flock is a losing proposition.

The answer to the question of what should be done to prevent the eradication of small flocks lies in taking advantage of buying "purpose bred," pullets clean chicks for high livability and fast growth; providing efficient feed for maintenance maximum egg or meat production, insulating poultry houses for prevention of the costly winter pause, construction of labor saving devices, as for instance feed and egg carrying push carts (which on rubber wheels can easily be pushed into houses), or construction of hoists to

WE NEED MORE HONEY BEES

When it is considered that honey is the most healthful form of sweets as well as one of the most delicious of easily assimilated foods, our national per capita consumption of less than 1½ pounds a year is scarcely less than startling. Against this statistical background farmers and suburban citizens may justly ask the question—Would increased honey production be wise and profitable?

In the unquestioned light of experience orchardists need more honey bees. This insect is the only reliable, effective carrier of pollen. This is also true among legitimate forage crops and vegetables. So important is the bee's pollinating role that the U. S. Department of Agriculture entitled a release three years ago with the heading: "Uncle Sam Needs More Bees." Later another release stated, "The principal role of the honey bee is not in the production of honey and beeswax, as is commonly supposed, but in the pollination of agricultural crops for the production of seed and fruit."

It is, however, doubtful that an expansion of beekeeping would prove profitable from a commercial producer's standpoint under present economic conditions. Experienced bee men point to two main factors to support this statement:

1. Tariff rates under Reciprocal Trade Agreement pacts are so low that imports of honey from favored nations continue heavy.

2. Under the government's price support program retail prices of honey are kept so high that consumption is held at the ridiculously low level already mentioned. With honey retailing at 30 to 50 cents a pound, even consumers whose physicians advise honey in diets can scarcely afford so exorbitant a luxury. Thus, the governmental policy claimed to boost the beekeeper's income is in actual practice restricting sales and injuring the industry.

carry feed upstairs without dangerous lifting, or building of chutes in order to refill self feeders with the least effort; and finally not forgetting automatic waterers of which many practical and reasonable types are available.

No enterprise of farming has a better chance in the future than the small farm flock by intelligent selection of some of the above mentioned modern labor saving devices which will be discussed in future "Poultry Pointers."

places. They are native to a tropical climate where they enjoyed moist air and good drainage in humus-filled loam.

Next, as indicated by ferns found in our own temperate zone forests, this plant prefers shade or partial shade. The finest specimens are invariably found in ravines on the north slopes of densely wooded hills, usually in soil mellowed by centuries of decaying leaves—acid loam of unquestioned fertility.

When indoor ferns fail it is the common practice to attribute the trouble to insects or diseases or to lack of commercial plant foods. If all ferns could be gathered into a single mass of complaints and the tangled puzzle solved, most of them would be found resulting from five widely prevalent causes: (1) Too much direct sunlight; (2) Fumes from gas, oil or coal stoves; (3) High temperatures; (4) Excessive codding; and (5) Over-watering.

Most successes with this plant occur when they are grown in north windows. If it is necessary to keep them in eastern, southern or western windows, they should be sheltered from midday sunshine.

Few successes are reported from homes where gas is used for cooking. Gas fumes are usually fatal to ferns as well as several other indoor ornamentals.

The evils of high temperature apparently come from dry air and not from the factor of temperature alone. Relatively few ferns thrive in temperatures above 70 degrees; few fail where the room temperature remains in the upper or middle 60's.

Ferns resent excessive care—codding. They should be watered freely whenever they put forth new growth. But moisture should be reduced when the plants enter their occasional "rest."

Every person interested in growing more attractive indoor ferns should write the editor at once for a free copy of our condensed cultural instructions. Please enclose a self-addressed stamped envelope or a 3-cent stamp for this guide. Of course, all related questions will be gladly answered.

Spring Starflower Is Bulbous Beauty

Much of the fun of gardening lies in getting acquainted with new plants and varieties. They do not necessarily have to be novelties of recent introduction. There are plenty of others which have been offered for many years, but the gardener never has gotten around to them. The first one to select, if you do not have it already, is the spring starflower. Unlike most of the other bulbs offered in the autumn catalogues, this one is native to Argentina. Its botanical name may be given as tritelia uniflora or as brodiaea uniflora. Sometimes the species is given as violacea instead of uniflora.

The number of scientific names invites confusion but the matter is easily clarified by calling it spring starflower. It's a pretty name well suited to this little bulbous beauty, which is available for fall planting. Place bulbs in a sunny, well drained spot with full sun. Three or four inches of soil is plenty for covering. They will not make any growth until the following spring.

The star-shaped flowers are as much as an inch across. They are soft lilac-blue with a rich blue stripe through the center of each petal. Spaced three inches apart, they will give a lovely little clump freely dotted with flowers in May.

If they do not stand wet they will come up year after year, with the clumps growing thicker and broader, owing to a generous production of offset bulbs. When flower production begins falling off after ten to twenty years, take them up after the foliage has turned yellow and replant in good soil.

They will not make any growth until the following spring.

STRIKE AVERTED

Camden, N. J., Oct. 24 (AP)—A union negotiating committee will meet today to consider the terms of an agreement which averted a strike of 500 technical workers at the RCA-Victor division of the Radio Corporation of America. The agreement was reached by negotiators Saturday after 23 hours of continuous meeting. The strike was to have started today.

REMEMBER how you felt last year when you saw what had happened to your tractor when you didn't have it winterized? Remember all of that extra expense and worry that could have been saved merely by checking over minor repairs?

• Your tractor is the hardest working machine on your farm. Take good care of it because breakdowns mean a direct loss of time and money to you. Check your tractor now or better still bring it to us for a complete checkup.

STEVEDORES TO RETURN TO JOBS

Honolulu, Oct. 24 (AP)—Hawaii's striking CIO stevedores will go back to work tomorrow and Wednesday in five of the islands' six ports. They started the territory's most crippling labor tieup May 1.

An agreement covering all ports except tiny Mahukona was signed yesterday afternoon—176th day of the strike whose known losses start at $100,000,000. The memorandum was signed by officials of all but one of Hawaii's seven stevedoring firms and the International Longshoremen's and Warehousemen's Union.

The agreement covers fringe issues which had blocked return to work since October 6 when the 2,000 ILWU stevedores were granted an immediate pay boost of 14 cents an hour with seven cents more March 1. They struck to raise their $1.40 hourly wage by 32 cents.

Longshoremen refused, however, to reopen the docks until side issues involving non-stevedoring workers in ports outside of Honolulu had been settled. Under yesterday's agreement they will go back at the five ports without waiting for a settlement covering Mahukona's 25 ILWU members.

The memorandum provides the agreed wage increases, extension of contract to June 15, 1951, and no discrimination against the strikers.

ILWU Regional Director Jack Hall hailed the settlement as "a great victory for all unions in Hawaii" and a "great stride" toward parity with mainland west coast longshoremen. West coast base pay is $1.82 an hour. A Hawaii Employers Council statement said it was "the same settlement basis recommended on June 28 by the governor's emergency board and accepted then by the companies, but rejected by the ILWU."

The semi-monthly meeting of the Mason and Dixon Memorial Post No. 6954, Veterans of Foreign Wars, will be held tomorrow evening at 7:30 o'clock in the post home on West King street.

There will be a meeting of the troop committee of the Intermediate and Senior Girl Scout troops in the fire engine house this evening at 8 o'clock.

MEXICANS NEAR SHOW VICTORY

Harrisburg, Oct. 24 (AP)—There isn't too much left today for Mexico to conquer at the Pennsylvania National Horse show.

And it looks like 1948 all over again for the finely trained champions and mounts of the Olympic champion team from south of the border.

The Mexicans took a rest yesterday after grabbing off two more individual trophies Saturday night. Col. Humberto Mariles, team captain and 1948 individual Olympic champion, came into his own as the scurry jump champion.

His compatriot, Capt. Alberto Valdes, finished off the evening's Mexican sweep with a first place triumph in a touch-and-out contest sponsored by the Pennsylvania lodge of the Fraternal Order of Police.

Mexico goes into the last round of the international low score competition tonight as an overwhelming favorite to stave off any threats from second place Canada and third place Ireland.

With tractors so big a factor in agriculture these days, the raising of horse feed has been sharply reduced.

Youth Injured In Double Collision

A sixteen-year-old Hanover motorist was injured Saturday when his automobile crashed head-on into a parked car and then careened out of control to the opposite side of the street and hit another parked auto in the 300-block Main street, McSherrystown.

McSherrystown Chief of Police Manard Masemer identified the injured driver as Dale R. Elicker, 632 Gay street, Hanover. Elicker was treated by Dr. Anthony Tananis following the double collision. The physician then ordered his removal to the Hanover hospital where he was admitted, suffering from head injuries.

Chief of Police Masemer said Elicker was driving east on Main street shortly after 5 o'clock Saturday morning and in the 300-block his car swerved to the left side of the thoroughfare, crashing head-on into the parked car of Woodrow Attlesberger, 321 Main street, McSherrystown.

A charge of reckless driving was filed by the officer against Elicker before Justice of the Peace I. M. Staub, McSherrystown. Damage to the Attlesberger auto was placed at $800. The Klunk car was damaged to the extent of $150 and Elicker's vehicle $300.

It's Tops—from the bottom up!

Fact to remember: When you look at a car, any car, you only see about 40% of what you're paying for.

That's why—when experienced buyers come in to look at a Packard—we often invite them to take a "road's-eye view." We like to show and describe hidden values such as these:

Double-solid-panel body construction—over a frame that looks husky enough to be a battleship's backbone!

Special alloys that make the engine almost "wear-proof." Fact: In high-speed, 25,000-mile endurance runs, Packard cylinder wear is less than the thickness of this newspaper page!

Extra ball and roller bearings—more than you'll find in any other car in Packard's price class. Like the jewels in a fine watch, these costly bearings guard vital parts against wear.

The list goes on and on, and on—and it covers all the big reasons for Packard's superior safety and comfort . . . and Packard's amazing economy. And how consistent has Packard quality been—in the hidden features, as well as the on-the-surface features? Answer: Of all the Packards built—in the last 50 years—over 50% are still in service!

DOUBLE TROUBLE

AP Newsfeatures By WILLIAM HOBSON

Chapter 29

Rover Boy had come more than 30 miles during the night. He was full of water and unfed. But he roared and plunged and then Jay got him turned, sawing at the iron jaws, and the great blooded Morgan settled down to a long running lope and began to eat up the distance between him and those two horses now far out of the plain. Jay felt the surge of his great muscles and watched anxiously for the first signs of sweat to appear on withers and flanks. But Randall had already said that Rover Boy was a cold-blooded devil in whose veins ice ran, and Jay now knew it to be the truth. He was a "cold" horse. They covered half a mile and then a mile and then another mile. Jay drove him on, conserving his wind and letting him set the pace. Three hundred yards behind, Harry Seltzer laid on dull spurs to try and hold the pace.

But there was no holding the pace with a horse that had begun to get warm now and work off the water in its sleek belly. Jay gave him his head and the iron-shod hoofs rang out and Rover Boy settled down to the job of overhauling Blue Star. It went on mile after mile, and now the big stallion's breathing began to be heard above the pounding of his iron-shod hoofs. He was showing lather along his flanks and around the bit in his mouth. But the steady drum of his hoofs never wavered and Jay Allison knew that he was riding his greatest ride astride the kind of horse he'd never race again.

Two miles ahead, the plain funneled into a shallow draw with ridges climbing up in a V on either side. He knew that Miguel, not three hundred yards ahead and roweling Blue Star cruelly, wouldn't dare try to turn aside. That would give his pursuer a short cut, a chance to catch up. He'd have to go up one of those ridges and it would be there, in the climb of winded horses, that the test would be made.

If Miguel ever got his mount over that ridge, Jay Allison had the feeling that his race was lost. He watched them draw nearer and nearer, cedar-studded and ominous. Lily Belle was still holding up well because of the light weight she carried and, in that last quarter of a mile, Jay turned Rover Boy loose and gave him the spurs, roweling him hard along his heaving sides. The gap began to close and the race went on until, not more than a hundred yards from the base of the ridge, Lily Belle stumbled and fell. Jay saw a cloud of dust with four feet sticking up in it; he knew that Lucia's hands were tied to the saddle horn, and a prayer went out of him. Poor kid, he thought. I guess it wasn't in the cards for her any other way. He drummed past, and saw only the mare, struggling to her feet and dragging a limp figure, tied by the wrists to the horn. He wanted to stop, but there was nothing he could do now. Rover Boy was running his great race and every foot counted. He saw Blue Star's heaving lather-covered haunches start up the slope and then Rover Boy, fifty yards behind, was hitting it too. Up, up, they went, and Jay caught sight of a dark face turning back, of a gun spouting downward. The Mexican raider was shooting at the horse.

Rover Boy's sides were heaving, his breath was labored and coming with a shrillness that told of a warning. Jay dug in the spurs and the great beast responded in one final burst that carried him up, just as Blue Star's haunches disappeared over the ridge. Jay lipped the ridge, and then ducked and dived out of the saddle as the shot slammed past his head, wild thrown. He saw Blue Star down on his side, belly heaving convulsively, saw the man who faced him with a flaming six-shooter. Jay fired twice and missed. He fired a third time and missed, at a distance of 30 feet. Something inside him said, Steady, boy; aim and squeeze them off.

He aimed and shot the horse thief squarely in the belly. As Miguel fell Jay shot him twice more.

A sound came from behind, and he turned. Rover Boy stood outlined on the top of the ridge, his great barrel heaving, nostrils flaring; something magnificent etched in moving life that said he was king of all his domain.

The great iron-jawed devil had run Blue Star down on his feet!

Nearly an hour later Jay rode back across the flats, leading Blue Star. He saw two horses ahead and two figures on the ground. Harry looked up. Lucia's head in his lap, as Jay jumped down.

"How is she? Dead?" he asked anxiously.

"She's got a pulse but I can't bring her out of it."

There happened to be a canteen on one of the saddles. Jay wet his bandana and began to bathe her face. Presently she opened her eyes and looked up.

"Jay," she whispered.

"How are you, Lucia?" he asked breathlessly.

She struggled to rise, got weakly to her feet. "All right, I think. The mare fell but threw me clear of the saddle. She went up on her back but didn't roll over me. It's my wrists. I was tied to the saddle horn."

Her wrists were a pitiful sight to see; raw and bleeding and beginning to swell. She went weakly to Lily Belle and Harry turned.

"Jay, she's beautiful," he whispered breathlessly, his eyes shining. "Harry," Jay Allison said solemnly to cover his feelings. "If you tell Mike Randall that Rover Boy ran Blue Star down after a half-mile start, I'll tangle with you. It would break Mike's heart."

Chapter 30

Turk's red face registered anger, mingled with surprise. "No! Why, then old—?" And he let go with a string of oaths.

"You can't blame him. Ellen is an only child, Turk, and a girl at that. So as soon as I can be moved a bit I want you to get a rig and get me out here."

"Where to?"

"The settlement, of course. It might be handy for me to be around when you tangle with your friend from the Rio."

"By the Almighty, I'll do it," Turk swore. "Just send me word."

The days flowed by. It was late August now and the weather was burning hot. Jay could leave his bed now and even walk around a bit.

There came a day when he could walk around in the yard and go down to the fence to whistle at the Morgans. Blue Star would come for the sugar and so would many of the nates. It was Rover Boy—Rover Boy, the iron-jawed—who disdained all efforts to bring him to the fence.

He stood aloof, nostrils flaring, and once each week he and Mike Randall had it out down in the pasture, over Mrs. Randall's protests. He was getting too old to be riding high-spirited racers. One of these days the sensitive Blue Star would bolt and drag him to his death. But it was all to no avail. Mike Randall rode his beloved thoroughbreds, and Jay sent word to Turk Pennock to come get him. He couldn't stay in the house any longer. It wasn't only because Mike had told him plainly that he wasn't welcome; there was Ellen with her solicitous way of caring for him, but with the avoidance still in her eyes; and there was Mary Seltzer.

He had to get away.

He didn't tell any of them that he had sent word to Turk by one of the riders. He waited until the afternoon Turk came in from the north, leading a horse with Jay's saddle on. Mike Randall had just come in on Blue Star, riding with Seltzer, who bestrode Lily Belle, the latter's shaggy big colt trotting along behind. Randall saw the horses in front of the hitch-rail back of the east wing and frowned. Followed by John Seltzer, he slumped into the big living room.

"Who do the two horses belong to?" he asked. "They're wearin' my brand."

"Turk came down from the line camp," his wife explained. "He came to get Joe."

"He what?" roared Randall at his wife. "Say, who's running this ranch anyhow?"

He hit the stairs at a bound, his spurs rattling, not heeding his wife's protests. Randall burst into the room to see Ellen and Mary with, the two men.

"Turk, what are you doing here?" snapped the owner.

"Shucks," drawled the big man, "things are quiet up there, an' seein' as how Joe sent word fer me to come an' git him, I ups an' throws his saddle on a hoss an' come down."

"Is that why you came?" Ellen demanded, and Jay saw the quick catch in her eyes, heard it in her voice.

"Why, shore,"

"Good," snapped Randall. "You come on downstairs and I'll pay you off."

"Oh, no!" Ellen cried. "Dad, you're making a mistake in taking that attitude. It's not fair. He's still sick."

"He gets off and that's flat, I fired him once and now I'm doing it again, just to make sure. You're fired, Joel!"

"Why, you old bull-headed moss-back!" Turk roared back at him. "Somebody oughta hit you between the haws with a club an' kick some sense in yore head. You better send a couple of riders up to the line camp right away, because after tomorrow me an' Joe ain't a-goin' to be there. Pay me off, too!"

Randall went out and slammed the door shut behind him. Jay, his arm strapped to his side, looked at Ellen.

"I'm sorry it had to end this way," he said, and meant it. He didn't know what Joe was going to do now. It looked as though things were all smashed up.

"So you're leaving, running out?" she got out, low-voiced.

"Not much else I can do."

"You ought to know Dad by now. He'll cool off by tomorrow, and then I'll take him in hand. Will you reconsider and stay at the camp?"

He shook his head. It was more than pride, after having been denounced and fired. It was Joe. He had to get back to Joe.

He saw the fire in her eyes begin to rise, the misunderstanding of his motives; motives he could not reveal. Her head went up. She started to say something and didn't finish it. Instead, she went toward the door.

"I'll go down and collect our pay," Turk said, and he, too, went out. It left Jay alone with Mary Seltzer. She looked at him with that level-eyed look.

"Joe, I'm sorry," was all she said. "So am I. But the cards fell that way."

"Where are you going?"

"I don't know," he said, and shrugged his one good shoulder. "Does it matter?"

"No, I guess it's not too important," she answered in a very low voice. He stepped closer to her.

"Mary, something's happened to Ellen these last weeks. Just what I don't know. She's changed. I don't know why. Maybe because she was siding her old man, though she didn't act like it just now. But I owe you a lot. You've been more than good to me while I've been sick. I'd like to show my appreciation in a very small way. Can I kiss you good-bye?"

"No, no, please don't, Joel!" she

IS JAILED FOR $20,000 FRAUD

Philadelphia, Oct. 24 (P)—Charged with embezzling $20,000, George I. Ryan, 47, former treasurer of Mt. Carmel, Pa., Credit Union, was in Moyamensing prison today awaiting action by federal authorities. Ryan was committed to prison in default of $5,000 bail by Magistrate William A. Byrd, Jr., sitting as an acting U.S. commissioner, last night. He is scheduled for a further hearing today before U.S. Commissioner Ethan Allen Doty.

Ryan was arrested Saturday night in a mid-city club by Federal Bureau of Investigation agents. Lee V. Boardman, special agent in charge of the Philadelphia FBI office, said Ryan's arrest came after a search of nearly six months.

Boardman said the warrant for Ryan's arrest was issued at Scranton, Pa., and charges the former Credit Union official with embezzling the money from the Penanthra Credit Union.

Boardman said Ryan disappeared in April, 1949, shortly before an audit revealed the shortages. The Credit Union was used as a savings and lending agency principally by employees of the Pennsylvania Power and Light Co. in Northumberland, Columbia and Schuylkill counties.

Married and the father of a child, Ryan was a chief clerk in the Shenandoah office of the Pennsylvania Power and Light Co., of which he had been an employee 27 years.

BABE FOUND DEAD

Philadelphia, Oct. 24 (P)—On the day planned for his baptism, one-month-old Michael Plunkett was found dead in his crib by his mother, police reported. Detective Sylvester Farr said the child's mother, Mrs. Francis Plunkett, found her son yesterday beneath the crib covers with his face buried in the sheet-covered mattress. The infant victim was the Plunkett's only child.

cried out, and he saw something akin to sheer terror in her eyes.

But his good arm had slipped around her slim waist and he bent down and pressed his lips gently to hers. Then she had her arms around his neck and was crying softly.

"Why did you do it?" she wept. "You shouldn't have! I fought against it and fought against it. Ellen is my friend. We went to school together. She belongs to you. And now..."

She couldn't finish it, and neither could Jay Allison. He stepped back from her surprised, a little shocked, not knowing what to say.

He said gently, "I'd better be going now."

He went down the stairs and thought, what a mess I've fined up now!

Father Cleans Gun; Bullet Kills Son

Harrisburg, Oct. 24 (P)—An 11-year-old boy, Robert Lee Saylor, died last night after he was struck by a bullet fired from a gun his father was cleaning.

City Detective William Reeves said the shooting "seems to be an accidental death."

The father, Hugh Saylor, told police a .22 calibre rifle was discharged as he was cleaning it after he had been shooting at mark.

The father drove the boy to a hospital in the family car but he died en route from a bullet wound through the left chest.

Honeymoon Over With Weatherman

(By The Associated Press)
The weatherman says the honeymoon is over at least temporarily as far as sizzling temperatures are concerned in Pennsylvania.

The 70-degree reading prevalent in many portions of the state over the week-end are expected to give way to lower readings today with some frost anticipated in western Pennsylvania tonight.

The chill breezes will continue tomorrow, too, the weatherman said.

Philadelphia, Oct. 24 (AP)—

Two hundred Lutheran clergymen are here today for a two-day convention of the east Pennsylvania conference of the central Pennsylvania synod.

The Rev. Paul J. Hoh, president of the Mt. Airy seminary, led a forum on parish problems in the conference. Participating with him were the Rev. C. W. Tibbers of Glenside, Montgomery county, Viggo Swenson, Harrisburg, and Stanley Billheimer of Palmyra.

Because of his early efforts with KDKA, Pittsburgh, the late Dr. Frank Conrad still is rated as the "father of broadcasting."

able for the society's meeting and was congratulated upon receiving an honorary degree from Wittenburg college on Saturday.

The society's citation of honor for 1949 was presented to Dr. Joseph Warren Yoder, Huntingdon, author of several books on the Amish people of Pennsylvania. Dr. Yoder also sang a song "Pennsylvania Forever," of his own composition. A Gettysburg writer, Mrs. Elsie Singmaster Lewis, was a previous recipient of the citation, and was introduced at the meeting.

Mark Goethe Anniversary

Dr. Milton Rubincam, Hyattsville, Md., a native of Philadelphia and descendant of William Rittenhouse, read a paper on this distinctive Pennsylvania German pioneer, in which he said Rittenhouse was the founder of the American paper-making industry and first head of the Mennonite church in America.

The society observed the 200th anniversary of Goethe's birth, with an address by President Borneman on "Bayard Taylor," author of Pennsylvania descent whose translation of Goethe's "Faust" is recognized as one of the best.

Mr. Borneman traced Taylor's ancestry and career as a writer, lecturer and world traveler, and declared that a brother, Charles Frederick Taylor, Union soldier in the Civil War, was killed on the second day of the Battle of Gettysburg in fighting at the Wheatfield. He was a member of the "Bucktail" regiment. Bayard Taylor came here to take his brother's body home for burial after the battle.

Hold Dinner At Hotel

Rev. Brendle and William S. Troxell, authors of a chapter in a book published during the year entitled "Songs and Legends of Pennsylvania," spoke on Pennsylvania Dutch folk songs, and several of them were sung by the Heidelberg township, Lehigh county, male quartet, in Pennsylvania Dutch dialect.

The meeting in Brua chapel was followed by a dinner at 1:15 p. m. at the Hotel Gettysburg. Approximately 200 members and guests of the society were present for the meeting and dinner.

Dr. Robert Portenabugh, head of the history department at Gettysburg college, who had been scheduled to give an address on the Battle of Gettysburg, was unable to be present. He was attending a meeting of the Pennsylvania Historical society at Carlisle.

mission seems to have adopted the idea it was set up to protect the utilities rather than the people. These are but some of the things a Democratic administration could change, and change for the better."

Others Speak

Congressman James F. Lind told the group "I've attempted at Washington to carry out the program the people of Adams, Franklin and York counties want. Part of your program has been carried out this year and I believe by the time the 81st Congress ends its sessions next year your platform will be entirely enacted into law."

Frad G. Klunk, county chairman, opened the meeting. "The Star Spangled Banner" was sung by Miss Mary Jo Adams accompanied by Hugh Colgan. Various candidates including George March for county treasurer; Walter J. Craimer, for sheriff; Sebastian Weaver, for associate judge; Lloyd T. Gooding, for clerk of courts and L. Robert Crouse, for jury commissioner, were introduced and spoke briefly. Judge W. C. Sheely was also introduced. John D. Lippy, Jr., acted as toastmaster. Entertainment was provided by the "Four Winds quartet." Francis R. Weirman, James Conrad, Jules Lawrence and Ray Lawrence, and by a magician.

NCCW DEANERY

pecially in the family, the church and in welfare work, thereby building up the mystical body of Christ, the Church," he asserted.

The meeting of the executive board of the council was held preceding the open meeting, in the rectory parlors of Corpus Christi parish. The newly elected officers assumed their duties at the meeting. They are: President, Miss Marie Carbaugh, New Oxford; vice president, Mrs. Evelyn Chrimer, Bonneville; secretary, Miss Mary Claire Overbaugh, and treasurer, Mrs. Bernardine A. Sterner, both of McSherrystown. Reports of the chairmen of standing committees were heard and activities of the council for the next three months were planned at the board meeting. The open meeting was held in Corpus Christi hall and the host pastor, the Rev. Thomas B. Johnson, said the opening prayer after which a group of children from the school sang "Prayer to Our Lady of Good Council." Father Johnson welcomed the group to the parish and introduced the parish president, Mrs. Grace Detrich. Each member of the executive board was presented with a chrysanthemum corsage by Father Johnson.

It was announced that the annual Day of Reflection sponsored by the Deanery will be held on Sunday, November 20, at St. Joseph's academy, McSherrystown. Reservations in the individual parishes will be made with the Study club chairman of the parish.

Entertained With Skit

Miss Marie Carbaugh gave a resume of the annual convention of the Harrisburg Diocesan council held recently in Shamokin, and the Rev. Ferdinand Gruss, assistant pastor at Corpus Christi, also spoke briefly.

A short entertainment was presented by the children of the parish, including songs and a skit given by the Boy Scout and Cub Scout troops of the parish. Luncheon was served by the members of the hostess council. Following the closing prayer by Father Johnson, a conducted tour of the city was enjoyed by the out-of-town visitors.

A shrine was arranged in the hall, centered with a statue of the Blessed Mother, surrounded by palms, cut flowers and lighted candles.

SAY 200 DIED IN TRAIN WRECK

Warsaw, Poland, Oct. 24 (P) — Unofficial but reliable reports said today more than 200 persons were killed in a train wreck Saturday near Nowy Dwor, northwest of Warsaw.

Informants said the accident occurred when the Danzig-Warsaw express left the rails on a curve.

The locomotive and several passenger cars turned over.

All official sources declined comment.

Some reports said the number of injured exceeded the death toll. These reports described the accident as Poland's worst rail disaster in 30 years.

Trains were reported running normally over the line today, after week-end reconstruction work.
